Introduction to the TOEIC Test

Anthony Walsh(アンソニー・ウォルシュ) 准教授

The Test of English for International Communication (TOEIC) is an international standardized test of English language proficiency. Once entering university, TOEIC will be the most important test for students learning English in Japan. This session will introduce the 7 different LISTENING and READING sections. Attendees will get an overview of the tasks involved at measuring their skills in an English working environment. So, expect to be challenged in this session, because TOEIC is designed for motivated people who can concentrate on small details of language.
